Winter-Spring 2010 selections

Wednesday, January 2, 2010 — War Dances by Sherman Alexie
A heartbreaking and hilarious collection of stories that explore the precarious balance between self-preservation and external responsibility in art, family, and the outside world.

Wednesday, February 3, 2010 — Lacuna by Barbara Kingsolver
In her first novel in nine years, Kingsolver tells the tale of Harrison William Shepherd, whose search for identity takes readers to the heart of the 20th century’s most tumultuous events.

Wednesday, March 3, 2010 — Olive Kitteridge by Elizabeth Strout
On the edge of a continent, in the small town of Crosby, Maine, lives Olive Kitteridge, a retired teacher who deplores the changes in her town and the world at large. Pulitzer Prize winner for 2010.

Wed, April 7, 2010 — Here if You Need Me by Kate Braestrup
In this memoir, Kate Braestrup, suddenly widowed, decides to pursue her husband’s dream of becoming a Unitarian minister, eventually working as a chaplain for the Maine Game Warden Service which conducts the state’s search and rescue operations when people go missing in the wilderness.

Wednesday, May 5, 2010 — Loving Frank by Nancy Horan
Fact and fiction are blended in the story of Mamah Borthwick Cheney and her lover, renowned American architect Frank Lloyd Wright. Their affair scandalized America.
